LEWISTON, MAINE (October 8, 2014) United Way of Androscoggin County is pleased to announce the members of the 2014 Campaign Cabinet. The Cabinet is comprised of local business leaders that volunteer their time to strengthen and build relationships with corporate and community partners, share United Way's message and work with current and prospective supporters to increase the scale of the United Way Campaign in both support and dollars.

As chair of the Campaign Cabinet, Shane Wright exclaims, "There are many great local business representatives involved in the Cabinet this year and collectively we will work to educate local organizations, leaders and individuals about the need, United Way's work and influence them to Give, Advocate, and Volunteer." Mike Barriault concurs. "United Way helps people in the community where we live and work; the decisions on what programs are funded are being made right here in the community and when you give to United Way your money goes far but never far away," he says.
